This document should be read in conjunction with the Government Specifications for Verification of Research Outputs in RAS and the RAS Step-by-Step User Guide.

Introduction

The Australian Research Council (ARC) distinguishes between ‘traditional outputs’ – scholarly books or monographs, chapters in scholarly books, scholarly articles in refereed journals, and refereed conference papers – and ‘non-traditional research outputs’ which comprise a wide variety of other outputs that differ in their form and mode of production, and are classified differently for administrative and reporting purposes. At ECU these are referred to as ‘creative arts research outputs’ (CAROs).

The intent of these guidelines is to elevate the quality of CAROs submitted into the Research Activity System (RAS). Through continuous development of a rigorous verification process, it is essential that the assessment of CAROs at ECU be on par with that applied to traditional research outputs. Accepted CAROs are subsequently reflected in internal reporting and may also be reported externally as part of ECU’s Excellence in Research for Australia (ERA) submission.

The content of this guide is largely taken from the ERA Submission Guidelines, particularly in regards to the categorisation of CAROs and the requirement to provide a written Research Statement. Our thanks to the University of Sydney for allowing ECU to use their ‘University Guidelines for Creative Arts Research Outputs’ to develop large sections of this guide and to the Victorian College of the Arts for some exemplar Research Statements.

Definition of Research

In considering CAROs, research is defined in the same way as it is for traditional outputs. Only activities that meet the accepted definition of research (being the short form for research and experimental development, often abbreviated as R&D)¹ are eligible for submission in RAS.

Research is defined as creative and systematic work undertaken in order to increase the stock of knowledge – including knowledge of humankind, culture and society – and to devise new applications of available knowledge. For an activity to be an R&D activity it must satisfy five core criteria:

1. To be aimed at new findings (novel);
2. To be based on original, not obvious, concepts and hypotheses (creative);
3. To be uncertain about the final outcomes (uncertain);
4. To be planned and budgeted (systematic); and
5. To lead to results that could be possibly reproduced (transferable and/or reproducible).

The above definition encompasses pure and oriented basic research, applied research and experimental development.

Professional Practice

CAROs are not to be confused with professional practice, which is identified as the application of one’s knowledge in a particular profession. This application may advance or extend the knowledge of the individual researcher.²

¹ OECD (2015), Frascati Manual 2015: Guidelines for Collecting and Reporting Data on Research and Experimental Development, OECD Publishing, Paris, as used in Government specifications for external reporting.

² Please refer to the Decision Tree for Creative Arts Research Outputs for further information.

Prior to submitting in RAS, staff should seek advice from their School nominated research mentor(s) and/or Associate Dean, Research, to determine whether their creative work/activity is likely to meet the eligibility requirements for a creative arts research output. Please consult with your School for any associated internal deadlines for seeking this support.

Research Statement

Once it has been determined, at a School level, that an output meets the definition of research, and demonstrates both research contribution and research significance, a research statement that captures such information should be developed. All CAROs must be submitted together with a research statement i.e. a written statement of no more than 1,900 characters which identifies the research component of the output. Appendix A provides guidelines for development of a Research Statement.

In 2018, the Australasian Council of Deans of Arts, Social Sciences and Humanities (DASSH) surveyed thirty experts in the assessment of the quality of CAROs as academic research outputs. The survey results revealed four key criteria where there was strong agreement of their relative importance when assessing CAROs as academic research:

- Demonstrated familiarity in the research statement with the current state of knowledge in the relevant academic discipline(s) (Very Important).
- Demonstrated familiarity in the research statement with the current state of knowledge in the relevant industry (Important).
- The success of the work according to the criteria of the practice community (Important).
- Evidence that the work has been engaged with by other academic researchers (Relevant).³

Researchers are encouraged to consider these elements when writing their research statements.

Research Contribution

Research contribution needs to be demonstrated for all CAROs submitted into RAS either by evidence of: 1) Advancement or Extension of Knowledge; or 2) Innovation.

1. Advancement or Extension of Knowledge: The creation of works that advance or extend knowledge within and/or beyond a relevant field of research (rather than solely extending the knowledge of the individual researcher). The output has enhanced, or is likely to enhance, knowledge, thinking, understanding, and/or practice in the relevant field. The work has developed new ideas or new data, and/or initiated new methods and forms of expression.

This may include: the creation or performance of new texts or repertoires; the development of new techniques or modes of practice and performance (including collaboration), and of new insights through creation or performance; the adoption of new techniques of design or fabrication; reinterpretation through the introduction of new critical editions (in print or online); new applications of original research to social or industry issues.

2. Innovation: Work exhibiting a high degree of originality, challenging conventions.

³ McKee, A. (2018), Analysis of the criteria used by key decision makers in Australia to judge the academic quality of NTROs, Australasian Council of Deans of Arts, Social Sciences and Humanities (DASSH)

This may include hybrid forms, forging connections between usually unrelated practices and sub-disciplines; recontextualising and/or reinventing inherited forms and practices; activating audiences (blurring relations between creator/performer and audience); interdisciplinary collaborations.

Research Significance

Research significance MUST be demonstrated for all CAROs submitted into RAS either by: 1) Evidence of Research Excellence; or by 2) Peer Review.

1. Evidence of Research Excellence: The formal quality assurance processes associated with the publication of traditional research outputs, like the involvement of recognised commercial book publishers, are frequently unavailable for CAROs. To ensure that only quality CAROs are reported, various other indicators of excellence are used.

Indices of excellence would include locations/venues of public presentation agreed to be distinguished by discipline peers including museums, galleries, theatres, conferences, festivals, media organizations, competitions and commissions. In the case of collaborative and cross-disciplinary projects, this may also include the involvement of distinguished personnel in a leading role (as actor, performer, director, artist, designer, architect, etc.).

2. Evidence of Peer Review: There are four main avenues for peer review:

- print or electronic critical or scholarly essays, articles, reviews, conference papers, etc, acknowledging the output and written by peers;
- recognition through short-listing, prizes, awards, or honours, reviewed and judged by a panel of peers;
- commissioning through a peer review process
- competitively funded grant schemes.

Supporting Evidence

Copies of verification documentation will be required to be attached to the output record in RAS as supporting evidence. Distinction needs to be made between a copy of the work itself and those materials which demonstrate the research component, peer review, scale or impact. Appendix B outlines requirements for acceptable file types for verification material.

Research Outputs

Outputs can be entered into RAS as either a 'Standard Output' or a 'Major Output'. These are defined in more detail in the section of this Guide titled 'Output Categories and Sub-Categories'.

1. Standard Output: sustained research endeavour, typically a few months to a year.

Equivalent to the Excellence in Research for Australia (ERA) categories B1 (book chapters), C1 (refereed journal articles) and E1 (refereed conference papers). Sustained research endeavour for a standard output can be demonstrated through:

- a credited or acknowledged sole, lead or significant role in the production of a substantial output or body of work;
- the publically available output exhibits at least one of the following attributes:
 - a moderate degree of complexity and /or sophistication in structure or scale;
 - the synthesis or extension of existing concepts, methodologies, approaches, repertoire and/or artistic or intellectual inter-relationships;

- a moderate degree of cultural significance;
- a moderate degree of influence on peers in the field.

2. Major output: substantially sustained endeavour, typically one to five years.

Equivalent to the Excellence in Research for Australia (ERA) category A1 (book). Substantially sustained and focussed research endeavour for a major output can be demonstrated through:

- a credited or acknowledged sole, lead, or significant role in the production of an extensive or comprehensive output or body of work
- the published output exhibits more than one of the following attributes:
 - a high degree of complexity and/or sophistication in structure, scope, scale;
 - novel or highly innovative concepts, methodologies, approaches, repertoire, inter-relationships;
 - a high degree of cultural significance;
 - a high degree of influence on peers in the field.

Output Categories and Sub-Categories

The following categories of CAROs are as per the ERA requirements and are reflected in RAS:

Original Creative Works	Visual Art
	Design/Architectural Work
	Textual Work
	Other
Live Performance of Creative Works	Music
	Play
	Dance
	Other
Recorded/Rendered Creative Works	Audio/Visual Recording
	Performance
	Inter-Arts
	Digital Creative Work
	Website/web-based exhibition
	Other
Curated or Produced Substantial Public Exhibitions and Events	Web-based exhibition
	Exhibition/Event
	Festival
	Other

These output categories and sub-categories are expanded and explained further in the next section of this guide.

ORIGINAL CREATIVE WORKS:VISUAL ART WORK

Explanation	Criteria
Definition	Visual art work in an appropriate medium expressing ideas that lead to new knowledge and/or advance the development and understanding of the creative arts.
Research Contribution
Advancement or extension of knowledge	The creation of new and original works of visual art that extend knowledge and /or advance the development and understanding of the creative arts, which might: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - offer a new contribution to broader cultural debates - develop or extend art historical/theoretical debates surrounding specific genres of creative production (e.g., painting, video, ceramics).
The knowledge extended should be that of the artistic community/field or audience, rather than solely that of the individual creator
Innovation	The work should exhibit originality in at least one of the following ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - the inclusion of ideas and forms new to a particular genre or to the visual arts generally - the incorporation of new technological research and/or new material/production methods - the use of new and/or unusual combinations of media in cross-disciplinary creations involving hybrid art forms and /or usually unrelated creative practices, e.g.: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - art/science/scholarship - creative/critical work - performance/public art - sound/visual installations/sculpture - collaborative projects involving sound/film/mixed media
Evidence of Excellence	The significance of any new work rests on its entry into public discourse through exhibition or other form of public dissemination. Evidence of excellence would include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - presentation in a venue recognised nationally or internationally by peers in the discipline, e.g., a major festival/gallery location - commissioning/funding by a distinguished public or private body - inclusion of work in school or university curriculum - recognition, e.g. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - an exhibition catalogue from a reputable international or local academic or commercial publisher - invitation to repeat exhibitions/performances - awards and prizes - acquisition by a public or private collection - discussion and dissemination by esteemed organisations, e.g., broadcast or televised.
Evidence of Peer Review (by academic/scholarly/professional peers, as for traditional print publications)	Evidence of peer review may be provided by: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - substantial reviews written by peers in the field and published (in print or online) in academic journals, by commercial publishers in the national and international press, and/or by not-for-profit bodies of national and international reputation - the commissioning or funding of the work / exhibition /performance by a competitive and/or peer-review process - awards, prizes, honours, short-listing, etc., judged by a panel of peers.

Exemplar 1: Original Creative Work
Creative Work Type: Visual Art Work
Title: Giving Yesterday a Tomorrow (Solo Exhibition and Catalogue)
Researchers: Prof C. Barstow
Institution: Edith Cowan University

Background	Contribution	Significance
The invited solo exhibition, Giving Yesterday a Tomorrow, curated by ZhuQinghua at the Hu Jiang gallery at the University of Shanghai for Science and Technology was the first exhibition by an Australian artist in this gallery. The gallery’s role is to disseminate creative research in historical, social and cultural issues via rigorous thematic art exhibitions by leading international artists. The exhibition was a survey of my work spanning 10 years including 23 new artworks exhibited throughout the two floors of the gallery, accompanied by a catalogue and curatorial essay.	Key works examined the notions of constructed histories re-examined in the theoretical space between Henri Lefebvre’s cumulative trialectics and that of ancient Daoist philosophy in which past present and future are seen as connected pathways across cultural boundaries rather than specific moments in time. Within this framework, a series of reconstructed jigsaws, interactive sculptures and animated films presented disconnected pieces of Aboriginal, British and Chinese scenes within simulated Arcadian landscapes as a commentary on the incommensurability of modern hybrid and multi-cultural societies. These works demonstrate innovation through reassessing political and social commentaries at a time of significant cultural change in China.	The works that comprised this exhibition represented a unique premise both in technique and in subject: that a complex cross cultural socio-political history can be presented in the form of a triangulated British-Sino-Australian model that questions our assumptions about the fixity of time and place. The exhibition opening involved a performative collaboration with Xu Shanxun, one of China’s most renowned artists. The exhibition was attended by over 1300 people and was reviewed on a number of Chinese websites including China’s most popular e-arts forums.

DESIGN/ARCHITECTURAL WORK

Explanation	Criteria
Definition	Architecture and design (built or unbuilt) undertaken on a systematic basis in order to increase the stock of knowledge in the context of architecture, design, and creative arts research. The output document should be some form of design documentation, and there should be supporting documentation to show that the design has entered the public domain in some way.
Research Contribution
Advancement or extension of knowledge	The creation of new and original work both realised and unrealised, that extends knowledge and design typologies. This may include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - new techniques of conceptualisation, design, fabrication, or compositional processes - new relationships to programs of social utility.
The knowledge extended should be that of the commissioning body and society, rather than solely that of the individual designer
Innovation	Architecture and design that exhibits originality in at least one of the following ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - by challenging disciplinary conventions - by yielding new and highly innovative approaches or techniques - by addressing existing issues in new ways - by creating unusual combinations of media.
Research Significance
Evidence of Excellence	The significance of any new work rests on its entry into public discourse through exhibition, publication and or public construction. Evidence of excellence would include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - exhibition or publication in a venue recognised nationally or internationally by peers in the discipline - commissioning / funding by a distinguished public or private body or industry partner. Additional evidence of significance and impact may be provided by reproduction and repeat exhibition.
Evidence of Peer Review (by academic/scholarly/professional peers, as for traditional print publications)	Evidence of peer review may be provided by: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - substantial representations or reviews written by peers in the field and published (in print or online) in academic journals or professional publications, by commercial publishers in the national and international press, and/or by not-for-profit bodies of national and international reputation - the commissioning or funding of the design work by a competitive and/or peer-review process - design awards, prizes, honours, short-listing, commendations, judged by a panel of peers.

Exemplar:	Original Creative Work
Creative Work Type:	Textual Work
Title:	Walking: New and Selected Poems (John Leonard Press, 2013)
Researcher:	Kevin Brophy
Institution:	Victorian College of the Arts

Background	Contribution	Significance
Walking, : New and Selected Poems is concerned with bringing a poetics based local identity and a performance-oriented plain speaking style into a more international context, via dreams, surrealist imagery, and a heightened responsiveness to place, wherever that may be. Poetry and national identities have long been connected, especially through literary histories and national anthologies. This poetry addresses how a voice shaped and imbued with local and Australian influences can nevertheless generate a poetry that is local yet global, both intimate and public, psychological and philosophical, anecdotal and dreamlike. This poetry is seeking sources for poetry beyond national voice, performative techniques, or the recycling of identity.	Walking,'s innovation lies in extending the reach of a poetics of place and 'accessible' poetry to tackling dreams, dislocation, travel, and more broadly ideas of mortality. This poetry's conceptual innovation draws upon the work of Michael Toolan and Roy Harris in integrational linguistics, who base their models of language on an assumption of cooperation between speaker and listener, and the impossibility of isolating language from the instance of its occurrence. This poetry tests itself against material that is more private than public, more unsettled than sure of its place and self.	In July 2014, Walking, : New and Selected Poems was shortlisted for the WA Premier's Literary Awards. In the same month, on the strength of this book, Kevin Brophy was awarded a six-month poet's residency in the Australia Council BR Whiting Studio in Rome. Kevin Brophy has been invited to participate as a peer reviewer for the Australia Council in 2014.

OTHER (INCL. MUSICAL COMPOSITION)

Explanation	Criteria
Definition	Original research undertaken on a systematic basis in order to increase the stock of knowledge in fields across the research spectrum, primarily in the creative arts, design, and the humanities. May include research published in a form that enables dissemination of knowledge, for example critical scholarly editions (including digital editions), scholarly translations and technical standards. For musical composition: the expression in an appropriate medium of original musical ideas that leads to new knowledge and/or advances the development and understanding of the creative arts. (The research focus lies in the process of composing or creating itself, rather than in the performance or recording the composition, though a definitive version of the work must be publicly available).
Research Contribution
Advancement or extension of knowledge	The creation of new and original works that extend knowledge and/or advance the development and understanding in creative arts or scholarly disciplines. This might: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - offer a new contribution to broad cultural debates - develop or extend historical, theoretical or design debates. For musical composition: the creation of new and original works that extend knowledge and/or build upon, or respond to, works by other composers, other creative artists, or researchers in music and other fields. This may include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - the development or extension of the composer's own original musical language and aesthetics - the development of new approaches to existing materials, forms or ideas in composition - The development or extension of an existing art form.
The knowledge extended should be that of the commissioning body/ artistic community/field or audience, rather than solely that of the individual author/composer
Innovation	The work should exhibit originality, extending the boundaries of existing ideas, methodologies, approaches, and/or scholarly or creative techniques. The work's originality may inhere in its innovative techniques, or in its utilisation of usually unrelated forms, genres and/or subject matter. For musical composition: the work should exhibit originality in at least one of the following ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - the inclusion of new composition, instrumental or production techniques - the incorporation of new combinations of instruments or performance techniques - the inclusion of new theoretical knowledge or technological advances in the production of new musical material - the fusion of usually unrelated genres, forms or modes of creation/performance - the interaction with other creative arts (e.g., sound/visual installations/sculpture, or collaborative projects involving sound/film/mixed media).

ORIGINAL CREATIVE WORKS:	OTHER (INCL. MUSICAL COMPOSITION)
Major Output	A major work involves new writing of significant scale and complexity, such as a major scholarly edition.

Substantially sustained endeavour, typically one to five years

For musical composition: a major work involves composition of significant scale and musical complexity, such as a symphony (or equivalent), an opera, an electronic composition of substantial scale or complexity, or a complex multi-media or mixed-media work.

The composer should have a credited or acknowledged sole, lead, or significant role in the production of the publicly available work, which should exhibit at least two of the following attributes:

- a high degree of complexity and/or sophistication in musical structure, scope or scale
 - novel or highly innovative concepts, methodologies, approaches, repertoire, inter-relationships (musical or otherwise)
 - a high degree of influence on the composer's peers in the field
 - a high degree of cultural significance.

LIVE PERFORMANCE OF CREATIVE WORKS:MUSIC

Explanation	Criteria
Definition	Musical performance embodying research and undertaken on a systematic basis in order to increase the stock of knowledge and/or advance understanding in the context of the arts and humanities.
Research Contribution
Advancement or extension of knowledge	The live performance of new and original works that extends knowledge and/or develops the work of other creative artists and researchers in music and other fields. This may include a live performance:
The knowledge extended should be that of the commissioning body and society, rather than solely that of the individual creator	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - of new repertoire, such as a world premiere - of repertoire that has been newly discovered, edited, or interpreted by the creator - of repertoire that incorporates improvisations drawing on extensive research.
Innovation	The live performance should exhibit originality, extending the boundaries or existing ideas, methodologies, approaches, creative or improvisational techniques. This may include repertoire performed according to new ideas of performance practice.
Research Significance
Evidence of Excellence	The significance of any new work rests on its entry into public discourse through live performance, and subsequent forms of public dissemination. Title: The Trouble with Harry
Researcher: Alyson Campbell
Institution: Victorian College of the Arts

Background	Contribution	Significance
The Trouble with Harry includes both the world and Australian premiere productions of a new play by Lachlan Philpott directed by Alyson Campbell. It is based on the biographical and historical material of a woman passing as a man in early 1900s colonial Sydney. It draws on the recent developments in queer historiography, with their particular focus on temporalities and mobilizes Elizabeth Freeman’s idea of an ‘erotohistoriography’, or ‘affective history’: an embodied and erotic encounter with the past in a shared, artistic environment that is ‘bound’ by limitations of time. The production offers a queer audience the opportunity to encounter ‘history’ collectively in a lost history of female masculinity and sexuality embodied in the figure of Eugenia Falleni/Harry Crawford.	The innovative dramaturgical approach positions writing, directing and dramaturgical strategies as the conscious production of a specific affective history. In The Trouble with Harry, the work-of-art creates a mode of experiencing history, as ‘temporal drag,’ which opens up a conduit to positioning ourselves in relation to our own historical moment in terms of femininities, same-sex desire, trans* identity and contemporary policing of the normative.	The world premiere of The Trouble with Harry was funded by the Arts Council of Northern Ireland, in partnership with The Mac, a leading performance venue in Belfast, Outburst Queer Arts Festival and Queen’s University Belfast. The premiere production was accompanied by a one-day symposium at Queen’s, which addresses queer and class. A chapter on the production and its framing as erotohistoriography is to be included in the forthcoming co-edited book on queer performance, Queer Instruments (Palgrave, 2014). The Australian premiere was funded by the Australia Council as part of Melbourne International Arts Festival 2014, receiving critical acclaim for writing, directing, acting and design. Oberon published the script with an introduction by Campbell.

Title: Synergies: Walking Together – Belonging to Country
Researchers: Dr F. Robertson, G. Stasiuk, Dr N. Nannup, S. Hopper
Institution: Edith Cowan University

Background	Contribution	Significance
Synergies, Walking Together Belonging to Country is a 33 minute film combining documentary and artistic techniques. It explores the synergies between traditional Nyoongar wisdom and Western social and natural sciences about the formation of Nyoongar land and culture. Collaborators include Dr Francesca Robertson, Dr Noel Nannup, Nyoongar Elder, Dr Glen Stasiuk, Nyoongar filmmaker from Murdoch University and Professor Stephen Hopper from UWA. The film was made with endorsement from the South West Aboriginal Land Council (SWALSC) and funded by LotteryWest.	This project took existing knowledge from two diverse knowledge sets and juxtaposed them in a new way. Traditional Nyoongar narratives and oral histories were placed alongside a synthesis of multiple Western science discourses relating to land formation. This alignment emerged as a timeline of eleven eras grouped in three phases connecting the spiritual profundity of Aboriginal cultural with the empirical world. This project used a pragmatic combination of existing research methodologies and techniques including constant comparison, co-operative inquiry, research of narrative and storytelling in anthropology.	The research is recognised to be ground breaking by both the Nyoongar community and the scientific community: The CEO of SWALSC said: ‘This project represents a paradigm shift in the making of cultural relationships – a timely celebration, it takes reconciliation to a new level’. Professor Peter Klinken Chief Scientist of WA said: ‘Such an innovative direction in communicating science - through the wisdom of Traditional knowledge – a wonderful achievement’ The film is screened regularly at the WA Museum, is included in the UWA Physics Cosmology course and is to be incorporated in the Education Department of WA year 7 curriculum.

Title: Pneumatikos
Researcher: Robert Vincs
Institution: Victorian College of the Arts

Background	Contribution	Significance
Pneumatikos is CD of work that experiments musically with Gilles Deleuze’s (1987) philosophical construct the ‘Body Without Organs’ (BwO). The BwO is a state where bodies are composed of sets of flows, free intensities and nomadic singularities moving at various speeds. In this research Vincs conceives of improvisation as a BwO, where free intensities and nomadic singularities become musically generative and where the music is enacted by the players as a ‘flow of intensity.’	Through a set of musical improvisations (in trio format), Vincs approach to music-making questions the idea that music is ‘compositional.’ It proposes a new understanding of how improvisational music emerges and a differently conceived musical environment. The new knowledge arising from this project found form as 11 new ‘tracks’ that are created from the perspective of a (Deleuzian) ‘intensity’ rather than through a deliberate ‘forethought’ as in traditional approaches to composition.	Vincs received an Australia Council grant to work on this commission. The research brought together key internationally recognized artists and technical personnel including Eugene Ughetti and Robin Gray. The CD was released by the international music publisher, Extreme Records, who are reputed for publishing challenging music at the leading edge of the art-form. The CD was favourably review by noted Italian critic Andrea Ferraris in Chain DLK. The theoretical insights which grew from this practical research are to be presented in a peer reviewed paper “Improvisation 2.0. Trojan Encounters” at the Composition in the 21st Century conference in Dublin, Ireland 2014.

Supporting documentation may be required to demonstrate that the digital creative work has entered the public domain.
Research Contribution
Advancement or extension of knowledge	New and original digital creative work that extends knowledge and/or advances the development or understanding of design and/or the creative arts. This may include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - the development or use of new applications, techniques, methodologies, or approaches - collaboration across disciplinary fields - new dynamic visualisation techniques and other forms of modelling - the extension of modelling approaches to additional dimensions - the use of new applications of existing material, forms, software, or ideas.
The knowledge extended should be that of the commissioning body and society, rather than solely that of the individual creator
Innovation	Experimental and/or interactive digital work that extends the boundaries of existing ideas, methodologies, approaches, applications or practices. The work should exhibit originality which may be in one of the following ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - by developing hybrid forms through new combinations of creative practices or media - by developing new applications or modes of interactivity - by applying visualisation and other forms of dynamic modelling in new fields.
Research Significance
Evidence of Excellence	The significance of any new work rests on its entry into public discourse through publication. Excellence is demonstrated by: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - presentation in a venue recognised nationally or internationally by peers in the discipline - dissemination by a commercial or not-for-profit body of national or international reputation - commissioning or funding by a distinguished public or private body - discussion and dissemination by esteemed publishing or broadcasting organisations. Additional evidence of significance and impact may be provided by invitations to republish, and by reviews.

CURATED/ PRODUCED SUBS. PUB EXHIBITIONS & EVENTS: WEB-BASED EXHIBITION

Explanation	Criteria
Definition	The curation and/or production of a substantial collection of material which embodies research and is undertaken on a systematic basis specifically for dissemination through a website in order to increase the stock of knowledge and/or advance understanding in fields across the research spectrum. The research is concerned primarily with the selection and arrangement, rather than the production of content. The published site should include some form of introductory and/or curatorial statement. Examples include permanent digital repositories, digital editions of texts, interactive searchable databases, and digital reference works and archives in all fields of research. (Where the researcher created the content or materials being exhibited, the research should be submitted in the Recorded/Rendered Web Site / Exhibition category.)
Research Contribution

Appendix A: Suggested Outline of a Research Statement

Thought should be given to the following elements when crafting a Research Statement for an CARO:

1. Research Background (Field, Context, Research Question)

- What is the work?
- Overview of the field/context in which the work operates.
- What is the research question/problem that underpins the research?

2. Research Contribution (Innovation, New Knowledge)

- What does the work do?
- How do we know this?
 - What are we looking for? The movement that occurs through the event of the work:
 - How did the research shift material practice in the field?
 - What methodological shifts occurred through this process?
 - What was revealed through the work? What did it do?
 - What new concepts emerged through the research?
 - Do these new concepts shift understandings and practices in the field and/or in other discursive fields?
 - Does the work a/effect its audience aesthetically, affectively or kinaesthetically?
 - Does the work shift the way we perceive the world?⁴

3. Research Significance (Evidence of Excellence)

Research significance needs to be demonstrated either by evidence of research excellence or by peer review. Recognition of excellence in the work is an objective measure, which is determined by others: including peers, critics, funding support and the industry. To ensure only quality creative arts research outputs are reported, various indices of excellence are employed. These may include venues/locations of distinction as determined by discipline peers or in the case of cross disciplinary projects, the involvement of distinguished personnel in a leading role such as performer, director, designer, artist etc.

Four main avenues of peer review are:

- Print or electronic critical or scholarly essays, articles or reviews acknowledging the output and written by peers or other independent qualified experts;
- Recognition through short-listing, prizes, awards or honours reviewed and judged by a panel of peers;
- Commissioning through a peer review process;
- Competitively-funded grant schemes.

Appendix B: Acceptable File Types for Verification Material

Mandatory verification requirements for submission of Creative Arts Research Outputs into RAS include:

- A copy of the work;
- Evidence of peer review/excellence; and
- Evidence of authorship.

Individual files should be no greater than 30 MB. Outputs that exceed this maximum size will need to be broken down into smaller files. Where it is impractical to digitise the entire output, authors can submit relevant parts of the output. In such cases, the digitised content must give peer reviewers the opportunity to make robust judgements on the quality of the output.

Supported formats for verification material include:

- Adobe PDF (i.e. .pdf);
- Image (i.e. .gif, .jpg, .jpeg, .bmp, .png, .tif, etc.);
- Microsoft Word (i.e. .doc, .docx);
- Microsoft PowerPoint (i.e. .ppt);
- Text (i.e. .txt); and
- Popular Video/Audio format (i.e. .mp3, .mp4, .avi).

Please note: In order to comply with ERA Technical Specifications, the following file types will not be accepted:

- executable and script based files (i.e. .exe, .bat, .sh);
- ZIP archives (i.e. .zip);
- compilation environment dependant files (i.e. .asp, .jsp, .cgi); and
- files that contain 'callbacks' and additional network transactions.
