5. Acknowledgement of impact
Students undertaking a reduced study load may only do so under compassionate and/or compelling circumstances which are beyond the student's control. These circumstances must have a significant impact on the student's course progress or personal wellbeing. Students should review advice available in the ECU Enrolment Loads for International Students policy and the ECU Admission, Enrolment and Academic Progress Rules. Students should also review Australian Government International Student Factsheet for student's rights and responsibilities whilst studying in Australia, the ESOS Act and the National Code. A reduced study load is likely to result in the student having to extend their Confirmation of Enrolment and student visa. New visa grants are subject to the Department of Home Affairs approval. If you have questions about your visa, you should visit the Department of Home Affairs website or seek professional advice from a Registered Migration Agent.
6. Declaration and Signature
I declare that I have read and understood the criteria and impact of a reduced study load. I am aware that if my application for a reduced study load is approved, it is only approved for the semester in which I am applying. I believe that my application is made on valid grounds and the information provided by me is true and correct. I understand that I need to change my enrolment before the relevant census date. By submitting this application, I am aware that this may change my course completion date and I may need to apply to extend my Confirmation of Enrolment (CoE) and result in additional costs for a visa extension. I am aware of my student visa conditions and understand that taking a reduced study load may have visa implications
