About us

Edith Cowan University has a library located on Joondalup, Mount Lawley and Bunbury campuses where researchers can access print collections and a research-supportive space. We provide extended library information and research services via our online database collections and interactive communication platforms. Our librarians are available to meet with researchers on campus and online.

How we support you

We provide:

- One-on-one consultations with researchers
- Workshops and advice on research databases
- An institutional repository of ECU published research including datasets; and theses
- A service to deliver documents and resources from other libraries
- Advice and help on bibliographic software and metrics (Endnote); ORCID; SciVal
- Research data management planning, advice and training
