Project Title:

Safe Dissemination of information regarding Voluntary Assisted Dying as an end-of-life choice, in regional WA.

Project Summary:

The purpose and significance of this PhD Project is to explore and create safe, integrated models of information dissemination, using Participatory Action Research, tailored to specific local contexts, inclusive of community members who may have legitimate concerns about the promotion and availability of VAD as an end-of-life choice.

It is anticipated that the process and results of this body of work will be shared and published, empowering other jurisdictions with examples of safe, unsafe, effective and ineffective information dissemination strategies.

Preferred Applicant Skillset:

The preferred applicant would be:

- From a nursing, medical or allied health background.
- Ideally would have experience in palliative and end of life care.
- Would be located in the South West.
